tion, as it is only an act of simple justice : WHYT BY MARY WALBINGHAM.

Men say they rest when labors cease:
They watch the sunset down the sky.
And sit with folded hands for peace,
As if the night brought calmness. Why?
Tail never ceased since life begun;
They only rest whose day is done.

The stone which marks our mortal rest, And points the traveler where we lie.
Weight heavy on our sleeping breast,
And irks, they say, the slumbere. Why?
No living couch but hath its moan;
But all sleep well beneath this stone.

They walk in silence round our feet,
And round our head with muffled sigh!
And in our grassy winding sheet
They drown the whispered scandal. Why?
Scorn, shame and wrong are mortal banes—
Nor ear, nor heart, bath mouldering maney.

They plant the laurel where we rot,
And trail the glossy amaranth nigh,
And wreath the blue forget-me-not.
With immortelles and ivy. Why?
Pale love laughs not, nor feverish wee?
But who laughs less than amaranths blow?

Men idly musing starward, fain Would limn the thoughts in yonder sky; They crave to link affection's chain, And bind earth's broken fetters. Why? He craves not chains whose freedom's won. They only rest whose loving's done.

It is said that Jefferson Davis will be tried at Richmond in June, if Chase will preside. He has signified his willingness to preside over a court in Virginia if the President will issue a proclamation abrogating martial law in the State. He had an interview last week with the President on the subject, and the probabilities were that the President would listen to his auggestions.

Secretary McCulloch sent to the Senate Finance Committee, to-day, a draft of the new hill providing for the funding of the national debt into a 5 per cent. consolidated loan. The Secretary of the Treasury has decided to redeem all outstanding certificates of indebtedness, and issue no more in future.

The majority of the Senate Committee are known to be opposed to Sherman's funding bill, especially to the exemption of U S stocks from taxation.

The Washington correspondent of the St Louis Republican thus writes of

The defection of Mr. Stanton, the Ajax of the Radical host, seems to have strickof the Radical host, seems to have stricken the entire camp with panic. If this this astounding change in the position of the tyrannical and unprincipled Minister of the War Department be not deceptive, he will no doubt be savagely at raigned for treachery by his former friends. As yet, however, the Chronicle has been silent in reference to this agnificant fact; nor has it elicited comment from the Radical orators in Congress. This mysterious silence means, undoubtfrom the Radical orators in Congress. This mysterious silence means, undoubtedly, one of two things; either they dread the effect of promulgating so important a desertion from their ranks, if it be real; or, still being in the confidence of the crafty Minister, they know it to be a perfidious device by which he seeks to retain his present official relations to the President, as a shield for
